

Ellen Munds

Ellen@storytellingarts.org

www.storytellingarts.org

317-576-9848

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Storyteller Donald Davis Returns to Indianapolis

INDIANAPOLIS - Storytelling Arts of Indiana presents Visiting with Donald Davis told by Donald Davis on Saturday, December 1st, 2018 from 7-9 p.m. at the Eugene and Mary Glick Indiana History Center, 450 West Ohio St., Indianapolis, IN, 46202. Tickets are $20/Advance or $25/Door. Tickets can be purchased online at www.storytellingarts.org, or over the phone at 317-232-1882.

We welcome back master storyteller Donald David for a very special evening of stories. His homespun wit and wisdom always make him a crowd favorite.

About Donald Davis

Donald Davis grew up in the mountains of southern Appalachia, in a world rich with stories. As a young man, he gravitated toward stories about his own family and places of origin. As he retold stories, he gradually began adding new ones. He spent 25 years as a United Methodist Minister. His humor has captured the imagination of thousands of audience members. Smithsonian Magazine says Davis is "a master of timing" and he has his audience "hanging on his every word." According to The New York Times, "His stories often left listeners limp with laughter at the same time they struggled with a lump in the throat." He has had 18 books published and has more than 40 original recordings. He has received national accolades for his storytelling, including the Circle of Excellence and the Lifetime Achievement Awards from the National Storytelling Network. He has also appeared on National Public Radio, CNN, and ABC's Nightline.

About Storytelling Arts of Indiana

Since 1988, Storytelling Arts of Indiana has introduced the art of storytelling by creating environments where Indiana residents can hear and share stories and by showcasing tellers who inspire diverse audiences. Storytelling Arts of Indiana provides programming year round, including public performances, the As I Recall storytelling guilds, weekly storytelling at the bedsides of patients at a local children's hospital, summer performances in 15-day camps, Jabberwocky, the Life Stories Project and Two Truths and a Lie in various Indiana state parks.